ABOUT THE WORK

In this world premiere production, a tight-knit East LA family is left shattered in the wake of their youngest son's mysterious death. Devastated, the mother retraces her son's final steps in search of the truth. In his signature blend of classic and contemporary, Octavio Solis parallels Jean Sibelius' musical masterwork in a play of the same name. Exquisitely visceral, Chi-wang Yang's direction of Scene with Cranes navigates the many avenues of loss, leaving us stranded in a meditation on grief.

Listen to a conversation between Octavio Solis and Chi-wang Yang on the CalArts Center for New Performance Podcast.

A NOTE FROM THE PLAYWRIGHT

When I started work on Scene with Cranes in 2019, I had no idea that the process working with the estimable Marissa Chibás and the students of CalArts would so incredible, but neither did I realize that this process would be completely interrupted by a worldwide pandemic that struck at the very foundation of our craft. Suddenly, we couldn't be in the same studio, we couldn't rehearse our scenes, and we were robbed of our audiences and our livelihood so profoundly that we wondered how we would ever return. But we did. Slowly, with care and consideration for each other, we met and we worked. We made discoveries, even with our masks on, that revealed our fragile humanity. And gradually, over the next several years, I saw these players all grow as my play grew. I felt them embedded in the unique development process that is a hallmark of CalArts Center for New Performance. I witnessed these students graduate to be fully professional actors. I came to cherish the uniquely intuitive manner in which Chi-wang Yang crafted our moments. It was they who restored my confidence in the vision that was waylaid by real world circumstances. We are all dealing with grief at the immeasurable losses within our families and our friends. We are all quietly raging at the tumult of the last three years. But that rage and grief are the tools of catharsis by which we carve out our new path, one which gives us a better view of Sibelius' cranes soaring overhead.

I am grateful to Travis Preston and Rachel Scandling and everyone at the CalArts Center for New Performance for their immovable faith in me, even when my creativity seemed to seize up, and especially thankful to my dear wife Jeanne Sexton for giving me the support, love, and space to find my way back to my heart. It's in every moment of Scene with Cranes.

— Octavio Solis

Awards: Obie for Sustained Excellence, the Michael Merritt Award for Design and Collaboration, among many others.

Cristian Amigo (Sound Designer) is a Latinx composer, theater sound designer, and music/audio producer. He works with/in immersive environments, electric and acoustic guitars, geo-located sound, soundscapes, free jazz and blues, Latin folkloric music, new music, opera, dance, installation, and film/video. Cristian is committed to a conscious sound art that links itself to social justice, ecological, educational, and humanistic issues. He is currently sound faculty at CalArts in the School of Theater's Experience Design and Production Program and is Artist-in-Residence at INTAR Latino Theater in NYC.

Alec Anderson-Carrasco (U/S Nico) is currently attending CalArts for his MFA in Acting. He is extremely grateful to be a part of this production and with the people who have brought this story to life. Some of his acting credits include: Marriage of Bette and Boo (Matt); The Metromaniacs (Damis); A Midsummer Night's Dream (Bottom). He is represented by KD Talent Management, Love Talent Agency, and Bold Talent Agency. Thank you so much for coming, and enjoy the show!

Camila Ascencio, She/Her/Ella (U/S Ruby) was last seen in Detained at Fountain Theatre and in Marabella at A Noise Within with Artists at Play. She has studied at Stella Adler (NY) and received her BFA from CalArts. She has also performed with companies including Golden Thread, New Conservatory Theater, ACT, The Marsh, Shinbone and Teatro Linea de la Sombra. She currently works for Kaiser Permanente's Educational Theater, where she tours theater and facilitates workshops that she has helped develop on social emotional health with public elementary schools across the country. She speaks Spanish, Cantonese, and Mandarin. She is grateful to Duende CalArts and CNP for including her in this incredible process.

Karen Ayala-Gaytan, She/Her (Asst. Costume Designer) is beginning her career as a costume designer with her obsession for historical clothing and story-led costumes. She is a first generation Mexican-American, with a goal to bring more awareness to the Latinx community of the many possible careers in the arts. She is currently pursuing her BFA in Costume Design at CalArts, after a drastic shift that led her to the arts, after she attended college with the intention of studying to be a nurse, and instead received two AA's in Fashion Design and in Natural Sciences.

Emily Barasch (Intimacy Coordination) is a choreographer, intimacy professional, and educator for dance, theater, film, and television. Emily comes to the field of intimacy work with over a decade of professional choreography and dance experience. With this background, she brings a complex understanding of directing bodies in space to her intimacy work. Her approach is extremely collaborative, often viewing herself as a translator between the director's vision and the actors' boundaries. She facilitates an environment of informed consent and safety while staging and filming scenes of intimacy, nudity, sexual violence, and trauma. As an intimacy educator, Emily gives classes and workshops in intimacy directing and consent for actors and directors. She currently teaches workshops in Intimacy Directing and Intimacy Directs production for the CalArts School of Theater.

Oscar Camacho (U/S Angel) would like to send his love to his Father, Mother, and family who have always supported him. He is a graduate of the MFA Acting program at CalArts and a recipient of the Ahmanson Award while there. He is thrilled to be reunited with his CalArts family. You can also see him next spring on Netflix's Griselda.

Kenzie Caulfield (Asst. Lighting Designer) is a lighting designer and technical director from New Hampshire, currently working towards a bachelor's degree at California Institute of the Arts. Recent work includes the immersive theater play Nightwalk in the Chinese Garden; Hieu, winner of the Deuxième Prix of Cinéfondation at the 72nd Cannes Film Festival; and Finis Terrae, winner of the Special Mention FEDIC for Best Short Film at 2020 Venice International Film Festival. Xu is a producing fellow of the Film Independent Project Involve program and Spotlight Dorado. Xu joins the producing faculty team at CalArts School of Theater and serves as a Producer for CalArts Center for New Performance.

Founded in 2002, CalArts Center for New Performance (CNP) is the professional producing arm of California Institute of the Arts. Established to provide a unique artist- and project-driven framework for the development and realization of original theater, music, dance, media, and interdisciplinary projects, CNP extends the progressive work carried out at CalArts into a direct dialogue with professional communities at the local, national, and international levels. CNP offers seminal artists from around the world resources to develop new works that expands the language, discourse, and boundaries of contemporary theater and performance. By infusing the work of transformative artists with the talent, vitality and impulses of emerging artists in the CalArts community, CNP fosters the future of live performance. | centerfornewperformance.org
